the secret club of radical transparency presents:

(-_-(-_-(-_-)-_*)-_-)

a performative conference on hacking, whistleblowing, surveillance and freedom of information

16.-18. september 2022

information

They are the many faces of resistance. They are the ones who rebel against the technological experiments of the oppressive and fascist systems, which are characterised by incompetence, corruption and violence against the vulnerable.

Because, no sh*t, the obsession with technology, the rising aspiration of surveillance capitalism, and the greed for data endanger our democracies. It's time to hack the system.

Over the course of one weekend, The Secret Club of Radical Transparency (-_-(-_-(-_-)-_*)-_-) invites artists and reporters, hackers and activists from around the globe, supported by scholars and the ensemble of the Theater Neumarkt to debate those current affairs, share their perspectives on future concepts of technology, and dance to the beat of maia arson crimew and Chelsea Manning.

This programme was non-secretly created by maia arson crimew, investigative reporter Sylke Gruhnwald, Theater Neumarkt's Julia Reichert and Eneas Nikolai Prawdzic.

A Social Game

In the «Secret Club», four secret factions find and infiltrate each other: the Blue Crew, the Red Pack, the Green Team and the Agents. The more members of a faction working together and logging points, the better! But beware! The opposing clubs will stop at nothing to sabotage your plans.

The crux: You don't know the club affiliations of the others. Your task is to find out who is part of your team and who is not, and not to be infiltrated by an opposing team or other agents. How do you know whom to trust? Trust your instincts! Or rather not?

The faction with the most points by Saturday at 11pm wins.

Coding Democracy – How Hackers Are Disrupting Power, Surveillance, and Authoritarianism (English)

A Proposition by Maureen Webb

Hackers have a bad reputation, as shady deployers of bots and destroyers of infrastructure. In «Coding Democracy», labour lawyer and human rights activist Maureen Webb offers another view. According to Webb, hacking is becoming a practice, an ethos, and a metaphor for a new wave of activism in which ordinary citizens are inventing new forms of distributed, decentralized democracy for a digital era.

20.30 Uhr

How to Hack a Bank – Based on Phineas Fisher's DIY Series «Hack Back»! (English)

A Performance by Melina Pyschny and Yara Bou Nasser

What if you could rob a bank from the comfort of your couch? Would you do it? The 2019 published DIY guide by myth-busting Phineas Fisher makes it possible. In it, Phineas Fisher takes you step-by-step through how to hack a bank and what to look out for along the way. Will you do it yourself?

21 Uhr

Hacking & Mental Health – The Ethos of Hacktivism and the Toll It Can Take (English)

A Talk with maia arson crimew, Moderated by Julia Reichert

The dark side of hacking, activism and its repercussions like anxiety, substance abuse, and depression has been widely underrepresented. Swiss former Hacker maia arson crimew and Julia Reichert talk about hacktivism, its goals, its ideals, and its impact on mental health.
